

It's Real!

This alien print diaper by Softbums and its "punny" name are both very real.

Close Encounters of the Turd Kind

It's Fake!

Cloth Diaper Geek created this great gag diaper image in 2012!

Meat

It's Real!

Money is a real print by coveted WAHM brand RagaBabe.

Money

It's Real!

Certain "cuts" of RagaBabe's newspaper print are more desirable to collectors. Though I made up the "reading material" part to be silly, I suppose you really could read it!

Newspaper

It's Real!

Picadilly Circus and its partner Top Hat were designed by artist Chelsea Perry for Bumgenius. According to the artist, some of the hidden items were intended, others were a coincidence!

Picadilly Circus

It's Real!

Retail Therapy is one of the original artist series created by Chelsea Perry for Bumgenius, though I did make up the reason for its name!

Retail Therapy

It's Fake!

Although there are some splatter style diapers out there, I faked this name and description.

Splat

It's Fake!

There are some tattoo inspired prints available, but none designed to make baby's skin actually look tattooed (as far as I know!)

Tatted Up

It's Real!

Canadian company Applecheeks is known for their unique, custom prints, and clever solid color names.

Winging It

It's Fake!

Gable was an April Fool's joke from retailer Kelly's Closet, but Bumgenius fans loved it and wished it was real!

Gable